

SQ3R

The SQ3R Method is a sequence of reading strategies to use whenever reading content or informational texts.

1. Survey the text before you read, looking for the following:
 - a. The title, headings, and subheadings
 - b. Captions under pictures, charts, graphs or maps
 - c. Review questions or teacher-made study guides
 - d. Introductory and concluding paragraphs
 - e. Summary
2. Question the text:
 - a. As you survey the text,
 - i. Turn the title, headings, and/or subheadings into questions
 - ii. Read questions at the end of the chapters or after each subheading
 - b. Ask yourself questions like
 - i. "What did my instructor say about this chapter or subject when it was assigned?"
 - ii. "What do I already know about the subject?"
3. Read the text:
 - a. Look for answers to the questions you first raised
 - b. Answer questions at the beginning or end of chapters or study guides
 - c. Reread captions under pictures, graphs, etc.
 - d. Note all the underlined, italicized, bold printed words or phrases
 - e. Study graphic aids
 - f. Reduce your speed for difficult passages
 - g. Stop and reread parts which are not clear
 - h. Take notes from the text but write the information in your own words
 - i. Underline or highlight important points you've just read
4. Recite from the text after you've read a section:
 - a. The more senses you use the more likely you are to remember what you read
 - b. Triple strength learning: Seeing, saying, hearing
 - c. Quadruple strength learning: Seeing, saying, hearing, writing
5. Review the section or whole text by:
 - a. Answering questions you asked while surveying
 - b. Going over the notes you took while reading

Adapted from the Study Guides and Strategies Website and Robinson, Francis Pleasant. (1970) Effective study. New York: Harper & Row.